

What you'll learn at the Cybersanity Talk!

Across

3. The law that requires schools to protect and safeguard financial information.
9. A process that includes IPS, IDS, ELM, and Change Detection. Abbreviated with four letters.
11. A control that prevents predictable attacks from occurring, usually applied at the perimeter of the network.
13. The aggregation, archiving, parsing, thresholding, monitoring, and reporting of logs.
14. FERPA is the law that gives parents the right to control the release of _____.
16. Which cybersecurity firm uses the "canary in the coal mine" metaphor to illustrate our role in incident response?

Down

1. While disaster recovery is centered around time, incident response is centered around _____.
2. An IT governance process that, when properly handled, turns lemons into lemonade.
4. A process that helps us recover from disasters.
5. A source of potential problems that can be managed with due diligence.
6. Big data and machine learning offer great potential, but will never replace _____ in technology risk monitoring.
7. The FERPA regulation helps us develop a framework for responding to incidents by providing a _____.
8. An IT governance process that is 9/11's of the battle.
10. The law that requires schools to protect and safeguard financial information.
12. The law that provides a framework for incident response in schools
15. The most important control governing technology risk monitoring is that it needs to be _____.

SIEM	Notification	Checklist	Business Continuity	HIPAA	FERPA	GLBA	Incident Response	Infotex
Awareness	Gray matter	PII	Vendor Risk	Event Log Management	Intrusion Prevention	24x7x365		